

Itchy feet? Gain work experience abroad - bab.la launches its internship platform

(Hamburg, July 25th, 2013)

bab.la is proud to introduce a new tool for language lovers who want to enjoy a professional experience abroad - our internship platform. (<http://en.bab.la/internships/>)

As more and more people wish to spend time abroad to sharpen their language skills, discover new cultures or improve their résumés with an international experience, we decided to bridge the gap and help internship-seekers find the right professional opportunity in the right country.

Furthermore, start-ups as much as well-established companies aim to broaden their range by internationalizing their products and services, and expand their market shares. The need for interns with a specific native language and their academic skills is definitely here. To find multilingual, qualified candidates, post your internship offers on our language portal!

After a successful year with the internship platform for Germany, we just opened up the opportunity to post internship offers to all countries. That way, employers and future interns meet faster, they find the right candidate and the right company and both benefit from the outcome.
